

Title: Learning together in a global pandemic: Practices and principles for teaching and assessing online in uncertain times

This session will provide an overview of the findings of a collaborative project between the Universities of Edinburgh, Queensland (Australia), and Lund (Sweden). The project focused on the period of emergency remote teaching between March and the end of semester 2, 2020 when colleagues from 3 national contexts were surveyed and interviewed about their experiences of adapting their teaching in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. Key themes and a set of overarching principles will be presented, along with some insights about changing teaching and assessment practices gathered from University of Edinburgh case studies which will help inform teaching in a hybrid context.