

IT Futures Conference

Authors

Jane Hislop, Academic Co-ordinator, MSc Clinical Education, Edinburgh Medical School – Medical Education. (Co-Presenting)

Brian Carlin, Academic Co-ordinator Academic Co-ordinator, MSc Clinical Education, Edinburgh Medical School – Medical Education. (Co-Presenting)

Janette Jamieson, Academic Co-ordinator Academic Co-ordinator, MSc Clinical Education, Edinburgh Medical School – Medical Education.

Title: Consideration of lessons learned from the MSc in Clinical Education around engaging students and using technology in an online environment during COVID, in relation to the context of hybrid teaching.

Abstract

The MSc Clinical Education is one of the largest and most successful fully online programmes in the University with a diverse global student community. In this presentation we draw on our experiences to reflect on our observations of changing approaches to learning and teaching that have evolved over the past 18 months. We will discuss the need to consider the continually changing needs of our learners' during COVID times and ways of using technology to support the selection of learning approaches which creates choice and maintains community for learners from diverse global backgrounds.